

RC28 SPRING MEETING 2023: CALL FOR PAPERS

The Research Committee 28 on Social Stratification and Mobility (RC28) of the International Sociological Association (ISA) invites all scholars working in the field of social stratification and social mobility to contribute to its next annual Spring Meeting. The 2023 meeting will take place on May 24-26th, 2023, and is hosted by the Center for Research on Social Inequalities (CRIS) at the Sciences Po, Paris. The meeting is organized in partnership with the Center for Research in Economics and Statistics (CREST), the Groupe d'Etude des Méthodes de l'Analyse Sociologique de la Sorbonne (GEMASS), and the French Institute for Demographic Studies (INED).

The meeting will be held under the conference theme of 'Education and Social Inequality across the Life Course'. Paper or poster submissions that address this theme are particularly encouraged, but all empirical and theory-driven submissions related to social stratification are welcome.

To submit your proposal, please visit the conference website at <https://rc28paris2023.sciencesconf.org/>. Note that conference participants may only present one paper, but can be co-authors on other paper submissions. Please prepare an extended abstract (2-4 pages, max 1000 words) including a clear description of the research question, the theoretical framework, the data and methods as well as the main findings. We welcome inclusion of key figures in the abstract. The abstract must be sufficiently detailed to allow the scientific committee to judge the merits of the paper. Please note that full paper submissions can complement but not replace extended abstract submissions. Please also include up to 5 keywords and choose the preferred format (oral/poster) and conference stream for your contribution during the submission process.

Abstracts must be submitted by the end of December 12, 2022. All submissions are subject to peer review by the scientific committee. Authors will be informed about the committee's decision by the end of February 2023. Please visit the conference website for further information on the conference.
